Venice again has been subjected to a bombardment by an Austrian aeroplane squadron, Vienna announces. The official report says that bombs were successfully dropped on the forts in the suburbs, on the arsenal, on the aviation station and on the barracks, as well as on the gas works and the railway station. All the raiding units returned safely.

In pressing the pursuit of the Serbians, the Teutonic allies have captured 5,000 prisoners, Berlin announces. Athens dispatches estimate more than 80,000 Bulgarians are facing 50,000 Serbians in the Monastir region in south Serbia. The Serbian forces, which have evacuated Priple following the enforced abandonment of Babuna pass are expected to retire to the heights between Priple and Monastir and eventually to retreat toward Albania, the advice state.

In the face of concentration of both Austrian and Russian forces on the Rumanian frontier, Rumania is expected to reach a decision regarding her future attitude toward the two groups of belligerents, according to a Bucharest dispatch to Rome.

MAY PUT EMBARGO ON STEEL EXPORTS

In Order to Afford Sufficient Supply of Metal for Use in Construction of Two United States Battleships.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—Congress may be asked to place a temporary embargo on structural steel to European belligerents in order to afford a sufficient supply of metal for use in the construction of two battleships, bids for which were opened by the navy department yesterday.

A plan was suggested as the result of a disclosure that neither of the new battleships could be laid down before next summer because of the lack of steel. The entire output of American steel plants, it is said, will be taken by warring nations. Secretary Daniels hints that unless the steel plants can be induced to insure preference for government orders, Congress may be urged to act.

24 HINDUS EXECUTED.

And 27 Others Sentenced to Servitude for Life in India.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—Mail advices reaching Washington yesterday from India told of the execution of 24 Hindus and the sentence of 27 others to servitude for life by a governmental commission at Lahore and described activities against the British government among certain elements of the Indian population as more extensive than has been admitted officially.

According to the reports the Lahore affair was only one of several which recently have been brought to an issue in India with similar results, all the prosecution being based upon charges of anarchy, mutiny and insubordination. The native press while speaking of the loyalty with which India responded to the call by the British government upon the natives for military service also has referred in terms of condemnation to the activities of the disaffected elements in the population which in some quarters are ascribed to German machinations.

The general tendency, however, is to credit the mutinous agitation to the work of a band of conspirators alleged to have been located on the Pacific slope of America for several years and actively engaged in a secret propaganda. These conspirators are declared to have dispatched emissaries to India who have been stirring up antagonism to the British rule there.

GAVE SIGNAL FOR HIS OWN EXECUTION

Joseph Hillstrom, After Fighting Fiercely Against Prison Guards, Yelled "Fire" as He Faced Firing Squad, and the Latter Blazed Away

CONVICTED MURDERER DIED INSTANTLY

Executioners Were Behind a Barricade and Were Not Seen by the Condemned Man—Notorious Case in Utah Had Sensational Chapter To-day

Salt Lake City, Nov. 19.—Joseph Hillstrom, the condemned murderer whose case attracted attention throughout the country and prompted the intercession of President Wilson, of the Swedish minister to the United States and of the American Federation of Labor, was put to death by a firing squad at the state prison at 7:42 this morning. Death was instantaneous.

Under the Utah law Hillstrom was allowed to choose between shooting and hanging, choosing the former. The physician placed a paper target directly over Hillstrom's heart and the members of the firing squad, who had chosen rifles by lot, stood behind a barricade hidden from the condemned man's view.

Hillstrom himself gave the signal for the execution. He had been about to give the signal when Hillstrom yelled "Fire." The squad fired and the bullets pierced his heart. Although self-poisoned when facing his executioners, Hillstrom had a sensational collapse just previously. He tied his cell door with strips from blankets and he fought the guards fiercely with a broom handle which he snatched from an attendant.

The History of the Case.

Hillstrom was convicted of the murder of John G. Morrison, a grocer, of Salt Lake City, and his son, Arling, 17 years old, at Morrison's store in the southern portion of the city about 9 o'clock on the evening of January 10, 1914.

The shooting was witnessed by Merlim Morrison, another son, 14 years old. According to this boy's story, which was corroborated on many points by other evidence, two masked men entered the store with drawn pistols and, saying "We've got you now!" opened fire on Morrison, who fell mortally wounded with a bullet through his chest. Arling Morrison ran to an ice box in the store, seized a 38-caliber revolver and fired. Before the boy could shoot again, he fell pierced by three bullets and died almost instantly. The men then ran from the store, one of them exclaiming that he was shot, and were observed to run southward from the store. The surviving son bent over his father, who became unconscious after having inquired where his assailants were, and died soon afterward.

Hillstrom, also known as Joe Hill, was arrested three days after the shooting on information given by a doctor near Murray, Utah, two and a half miles south of the scene of the crime. Hillstrom staggered into the doctor's home two hours after the shooting, with a large bullet wound through his left lung. He told the doctor he had been shot in a quarrel over a woman and requested that nothing be said regarding his visit or wound. The doctor, not having heard of the murders, treated the wound and took Hillstrom to a house where he had been staying for several days. News of the murders reached the case to the doctor and he informed the officers. The doctor found an automatic pistol, of the same calibre as shells found in the grocery store after the shooting, in Hillstrom's pocket. Hillstrom threw the weapon away after leaving the doctor's home. Blood was found at several places between the store and the home of the doctor and members of the family where Hillstrom lived said a companion had helped him take the night of the murders, talked privately with him and told him that he was not apprehended and has not been heard of since.

The Morrison boys, because of the masks and confusion of the shooting, was not able to identify Hillstrom except in general description of his size and clothing, but another witness gave a minute and particular description of Hillstrom as one of the assailants and a bright moonlight saw an electric arc lamp with snow on the ground. Hillstrom also was identified as a man who visited the store the afternoon of the murders and talked with Morrison.

Hillstrom's recovery from his wound was rapid and complete. He has always maintained his innocence, but has never told where he was the night of the murders or who shot him. He created a scene at his trial by dramatically discharging his attorney in open court, later giving as his reason their failure to "hear young Morrison to places on cross-examination" referring to the boy who witnessed the shooting. He refused to go on the witness stand himself or to offer any evidence as to where he was or what he did the night of the murders. He was found guilty by the trial jury. The judgment was affirmed by the supreme court and the board of pardons and clemency refused to grant a new trial. The case was going on to a grand jury. The morning closed with the execution. The morning closed with the execution. The morning closed with the execution.

September 30 at the request of President Wilson, who acted on a request of the Swedish minister. The case had previously been investigated for the Swedish minister by the Swedish vice-consul for Utah, a well-known attorney, who advised that his investigation developed nothing that would justify the board of pardons in commuting the sentence.

Hillstrom declined to make any statement before the board of pardons or to give it any information as to where he was or what he did the night of the murders or the circumstances under which he placed where he received his wound. He also declined to give the board any reasons why he should receive clemency and refused to let his own counsel or any member of the board interrogate him on any subject whatever. He declared he did not wish a commutation of pardon and insisted that he have a new trial, which the board and his own counsel informed him the board was powerless to grant.

Hillstrom Claimed To Be Swede.

Hillstrom, who said he had been a machinist and laborer, claimed to be a Swedish subject and on that ground the interest of the Swedish minister was obtained. Hillstrom was a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, the members of which have been active in demanding his pardon or retrial. Resolutions to that effect have been passed all over the United States and in several foreign countries. Many of them showed ignorance of the crime charged against Hillstrom and indicated a belief that he was accused of some political offense. The governor's office has received thousands of communications on the subject. As the day set for his execution approached the number of communications sometimes reached 400 a day. Many of these contained threats of death to the governor and members of his family, who were placed under guard. Other threats were to destroy buildings and other property and many believe a recent attempt to burn a leading hotel was the work of Hillstrom sympathizers. Elaborate police precautions have existed here for weeks past as a result of the threats.

Several local sympathizers, including a woman instructor at the state university, have been active in their efforts to obtain a new trial, a pardon or commutation for Hillstrom. One of these, who sent a cable to Sweden in Hillstrom's name, said he desired him set at liberty, guilty or innocent. The more prominent local advocates of Hillstrom's case were cited before the board of pardons in September and requested to present any facts they had in addition to those offered at the trial. All admitted they had no additional evidence to offer.

Morrison Previously Attacked.

Many persons familiar with the case believe the murders were for revenge, as no attempt at robbery was made when Morrison was killed. Morrison had been a police officer and was known as a man of great resolution and courage, which he had demonstrated on two former occasions in encounters with robbers. Four men entered his store the evening of February 2, 1903, and demanded that he throw up his hands. Instead of complying, Morrison ran to a rear room and returned with a shotgun, which he found would not work. Dropping the shotgun, as he was in the rear room, he rushed to the rear again and got his revolver, with which he shot down one of the intruders and drove the others from the store. They carried their wounded companion with them, but failed to get any money. A running fight with the gang followed. In the course of which one of them was shot and killed by a policeman after he had seriously wounded the officer. The others escaped and the dead man was never identified.

Morrison's second encounter was the night of September 20, 1913, when he was walking home from the store with $800 in cash in his pocket. Two hold-ups confronted him and demanded the money. Morrison drew his pistol and fired on them. One of them returned the fire and, after several shots had been exchanged, both ran away. Morrison said he thought he knew the men who tried to hold him up, but would make no charge, as he was in doubt as to how to accuse someone unjustly. Some believe Hillstrom and his companion were these men.

Morrison had a wife and five children, besides the boy who was killed with him.

GOOD REPORTS RECEIVED.

Of Work Being Done by Episcopal Society in Barre.

Nearly 100 women were present in the vestry of the Church of the Good Shepherd last evening for the first meeting of the mission study class. Meetings are to be held monthly during the winter and the attendance at the initial gathering of the series augurs well for those that are to follow. After a beautiful supper at 6 o'clock, Mrs. L. R. Rickett, the president of the class, called the meeting to order and by way of offering a preface to the program gave a very helpful and encouraging address. Next came the report of junior auxiliary work by the secretary of that organization, Miss Lucy Wells, who told in detail of the splendid progress made by the junior auxiliary, progress which reflects in no small measure the energy and devotion of the members. In this connection much credit is due Mrs. M. D. Lamb, who was an efficient conductor of the auxiliary for two years past. Mrs. F. G. Howland, who was next called upon, spoke with the qualification for retrospection of one who has been connected with the church in Barre since its infancy. Mrs. Howland referred to the possibilities of wider outreach in this city and made a strong plea for greater aid in church work. Mrs. J. W. Vaughan, who is the present conductress of the junior auxiliary, and a very enthusiastic missionary worker, urged upon her listeners the importance of missionary work and sought to impress upon the mothers the importance of inculcating the missionary spirit in their girls. Mrs. W. J. M. Smith, having been called upon for a few remarks, made a plea for the work of the church at large, declaring that anything, by whatever name it may be known, which tends to draw people away from God is not of God. Closing remarks were made by the pastor, Rev. W. J. M. Smith, who said that his outlook for the church at the present time is more encouraging than at any time in his history, which he ascribed to the increasing of a general feeling of going on to greater achievements. The meeting closed with the benediction. The meeting closed with the benediction.

JUDGE GAVE BOYS A CHANCE

Placed Three on Probation When They Pleaded Guilty to Making Break

SIX MONTHS' TERMS THUS STAYED

Other Respondents Appeared in Washington County Court

Pleas of guilty to divers charges were made in Washington county court yesterday afternoon and this forenoon by seven respondents, and in five instances sentences were imposed by Judge E. L. Waterman. Lawrence Burns of Northfield, arraigned under the blanket act, pleaded guilty this morning and was sentenced, despite a plea for probation made by his attorney, Frank Plumley, to serve not less than a year nor more than a year and a half in the house of correction. An information was filed in his case early in the present term by State's Attorney Gleason, who prosecuted.

Three youths, the oldest being but 18 years of age, were arraigned on charges of burglary, informations having been filed by the state's attorney, charging them with breaking into the warehouse of the Demeritt Packing company at Waterbury about 9 o'clock on the night of September 23. Chester Clark, 18, Joel Rice and John Francis, 17, all pleaded guilty, not being represented by counsel, and all were sentenced to serve not more than eight nor less than six months in the house of correction; but the sentence was stayed and they were placed in the hands of Probation Officer C. A. Smith.

According to the state's attorney, the offense committed was the first by any of the boys concerned, and he joined with Mr. Demeritt of Duxbury in recommending that they be placed on probation. Judge Waterman, in so doing, took opportunity to give some kind and helpful advice. He said that it was pitiable to see three young boys in court on so serious a charge and he could not help but believe that they were ignorant of the laws of the state regarding the seriousness of the offense. He read that part of the statute which provides a penalty of not more than 15 years' imprisonment and a fine of not more than $1,000. He said that as long as Mr. Demeritt was willing to give the boys a chance to lead a better life and follow a more useful career the court was going to give them an opportunity. All three promised to keep out of trouble and to obey their parents in the future. One of the boys, Francis, has been in jail since arrested two months ago.

Yesterday afternoon B. Giovannelli of Northfield, charged with carrying concealed weapons, pleaded guilty when arraigned and was sentenced to the house of correction for not more than eight nor less than six months but was placed on probation. He will be allowed to go to Keene, N. H., to be employed. Pietro Zampini and Giacinto Polti of Barre, alleged by the state to have been the companions of Pietro Garrelli when an assault with intent to kill was made upon Eugene Gagit in Barre last August, the affray growing out of the labor trouble in the spring, pleaded guilty to simple assault. Gagit, it will be recalled, was tried on the more serious charge several weeks ago and found guilty of simple assault. All three will appear next Wednesday for sentence.

Two new cases filed yesterday were: Frank C. Phelps vs. Charles Utley, Kimball and S
